FEATURED SITES
PSP-STYLE
Korean site for Play Station Portable. Seducing, Impressive, Outstanding. Does anybody know, how come especially Koreans are building so many state-of-the-art sites?
WASTED BEAUTY
Outstanding presentation of an illustrator, featuring perfectly the atmosphere of the drawings.
F1 PLAY
Well hand-crafted site in pseudo-3D style, dedicated to Formula 1.

CURRENT ISSUE
Category: Know-How
PRETTY TRENDY VECTOR STUFF
his vector art a trendy art? People behind the inmode website introduce their vision about the "vector art" and draw up a large portrait of the vector scene and its players... for the love of the vector stuff.

LATEST ISSUES
Designing Atmospheric Websites
In this issue, Ingo J. Ramin (247 MediaStudios) describes what it needs to make websites, which leave real impact.
Usability: Does anyone really care?
This issue, written by Kevin Aigrid, attracts attention to the topic of usability of flash sites and names useful resources.
Flash Transitions
GIF animations and image rollovers used to be cutting edge. That was a long time ago. Maurice Wright, the mind behind the Molva.com design portal shares his perspective on one of the most important steps in current web development.
Shades of green - a great difference
Green color is one of the most controversial - slight tone changes lead to complete interpretation change: from peaceful to military, from healthy to poisonous, and from natural to artificial...
Aesthetics of the colorless
Color design does not necessarily mean the decision between red, green and blue. Sometimes it is the best not to use the hues at all.
Dark And Moody
A look at the dark side of the web
